Dear Judge Drain —

I write respectfully in response to the troubling letter that Mr. Levine submitted to the Court yesterday. As Mr. Levine has known for many weeks now, I am presently out of the country and will not return to my office until Monday. And yet — rather than simply contacting me upon my return to confirm the status of the physical bond documentation — he felt it necessary to launch into his latest accusatory rant.

I do not and will not know where the documentation is until I return next week. But I shall address the matter promptly on Monday.

Based upon historical experience, however, I expect Mr. Levine to respond to this communication with another rhetorical assault. Because of my traveling circumstances and a family emergency at home, I shall be unable to address any additional submissions until Monday.

Respectfully,

Daniel S. Alter
